When the Oak House College, a distance learning facility specialising in bookkeeping, decided to enter the Scottish market it chose a Regus Link to help it get established.

“For our first venture into Scotland it made sense to have a local point of contact and this is what the Regus Link provided,” says Moira Simpson, the college’s principal.

“The fact that Regus could re-direct our post and handle telephone enquiries alleviated the need for us to have our own staff in Glasgow and we got the added benefit that we could use the business centre to hold interviews and receive deliveries. In addition, Regus handled everything for us in a very professional way and gave a very good impression of the college to candidates.”
